CHINESE BEVERAGES

China's tradition of brewing and enjoying alcoholic beverages stretches back thousands of years. In fact, some of the earliest evidence of fermented drinks was discovered in Henan Province, where people were already making beverages from rice, honey, and fruit as far back as 9,000 years ago. Over the centuries, this rich drinking culture has continued to evolve, with Baijiu emerging as one of China's most distinctive spirits and an enduring feature of celebrations and gatherings today.

Beyond their individual character and distinctive flavours, these drinks have long held a special place at the dining table, complementing different dishes and bringing people together over shared meals. At Hai Tien Lo, we invite you to explore this rich heritage through our selection of beverages, each offering a glimpse into the country's longstanding culinary traditions.
