ASSEMBLAGE OF
ICONIC BEVERAGES

SINGAPOREAN BEVERAGES

Being a first-world metropolis teeming with energy, boasting a wide array of glitzy, world-renowned clubs, a bustling cocktail bar scene and so much more, Singapore makes for a mighty fine place to party like there's no tomorrow.

In Singapore, safety and security sit at the helm of the government's list of priorities which has, as of late, led them to introduce a slew of drinking laws. As of 2015, Singapore has banned the sale and consumption of alcohol in public spaces from 10.30pm to 7am. The ban came into effect after a riot took place at Race Course Road due to public disorder caused by excessive drinking.

Singapore is a foodie paradise. Food is viewed as necessary to national identity and a unifying cultural thread and is a frequent subject material of communication among Singaporeans, and its diverse array of drinks is no exception. Despite the fact that the excessive imposition of taxes on alcoholic beverages makes them an expensive indulgence, but vacationers and locals ne'er omit a threat to down a drink, or for people who wish to stay aloof from alcohol can enjoy equally pleasant native arrangements.

BOBA-CANE

Sugarcane juice can be found pretty much anywhere in the world but it's perfect match for Singapore's weather that makes this drink different from all of the rest. It cools down the body, improves energy levels and has therapeutic effects on your liver.

No list of popular drinks in Singapore would be complete without mentioning Bubble Tea. We've taken what makes Boba unique, offering a range of toppings adding something extra to the beverage that bursts with each sip.
